Concern about the risk of an armed clash, this dossier is essential reading for understanding the state, capabilities and future of Russia's armed forces.

While Western observers should be prepared to see Russia's armed forces become more capable

Over the next decade, they should avoid exaggerating the threat posed by these developments. By 2027, the Russian armed forces are likely to be considerably better equipped than they are today.

Nevertheless, one should not overstate the pace of probable modernization. While some progress may be made in the development of new-generation equipment, the armed forces will probably still rely on a mix of legacy hardware and modernized Soviet systems alongside new designs.

Providing Russia with
